

Learn how electronic and mechanical systems work and the components used to make them. Students will design, build, and test various electronic, mechanical and electromechanical projects. Students will focus on the functions of machines and devices, and designing systems to solve particular problems using the systems engineering process.

This subject leads to VCE Systems Engineering.